GEN. WOOD'S SON CLEANS $2,000,000 IN LATEST PLUNGE

PARIS, Dec. 19.—The recent boom in stocks in Wall Street netted Osborn Wood, son of General Leonard E. Wood, Governor-general of the Philippines, two million dollars, his friends here declared today.

Wood admitted that he had been playing Wall Street but refused to confirm the amount of his profits.

When Wood was asked what specific stocks he had dealt in, he replied:

"That is unimportant. I have, however, decided not to take diplomatic examinations but instead will return to New York within a fortnight and enter the oil business.

"It would be very unwise for me to say in what stocks I made my profits. That would be a poor start for a prominent business career."

Wood was interviewed in his suite at the Crillon hotel.

"You ask me whether I made two million dollars. Well, now don't you think two million is a lot of money? You'd better say instead that I made two or three dollars because maybe I did in the recent bull market."

Wood celebrated what his friends termed "his biggest winning," by giving a dinner party last night at the club Daunou. He displayed a huge "bank roll" and his smallest change was in thousand franc bills.

After the dinner party Wood invited the entire group to Montmartre.

ASSEMBLY MAY SIT THROUGH FIRST WEEK

Governor Donahey Objects to Pomp at Inaugural Ceremony and Would Speed Message to Legislature

COLUMBUS, Dec. 19.—Breaking precedent, the state legislature will remain in session throughout the first week, following its convening here on Monday, January 5, according to announcement made today by State Rep. Harry D. Silver, Preble county, who will serve as speaker of the house.

It has been the custom for the legislators to recess on the second day, until the following week, in view of the gubernatorial inauguration.

Gov. Donahey, however, has voiced the wish that the inception of his second term, next month, be devoid of display, that he dispense with an inaugural address and that the occasion be substantially limited to the administration of the oath of office to him in the chamber of the House of Representatives to be followed by delivery of his message to the legislature.

Rep. Silver has expressed belief that the first week's activities of the legislators should be featured by consideration of plans for the erection of a new state office building.

Over $130,000,000 Given Away for Worthy Causes in 1924

The year of 1924 will go down in history as notable for many things. One of these will be the generosity of the philanthropists of the country who have donated or bequeathed a total of over $130,000,000 in the past 12 months. The largest single monetary contribution to the common weal was that of James B. Duke, millionaire tobacco and power magnate, who recently gave $40,000,000 in the form of a trust fund for charitable and educational purposes. Above are some of the philanthropists who made notable contributions during the year. Top row, left to right, James B. Duke, J. P. Morgan, John D. Rockefeller. Lower row, George F. FRITZ HAARMANN HEARS JURY GRANT HIS PLEA FOR AXE

HANOVER, Germany, Dec. 19.—Fritz Haarmann today heard the jury's answer to his plea for speedy death. It was a sentence to die on the guillotine for both the attic ogre and his vulture, Hans Grans.

Haarmann was found guilty of 24 of the 27 murders with which he was charged. Grans was held guilty of instigation of one murder as an accessory in a second.

Grans was sentenced to the guillotine for prompting the murder of one of the many youths he lured to Haarmann's little room overlooking the river where Haarmann killed them that Grans might sell their clothes.

As accessory to a second murder of the posible two score Haarmann has admitted that he may have committed, Grans was sentenced to fifteen years in the penitentiary.

Haarmann accepted the verdict in the same spirit that he had requested that his head be chopped off.

"I fully accept the verdict. I want no appeal, no pardon," he said. "However, in some of these cases, I was not guilty."

Both Haarmann and Grans stood calm and emotionless.

Haarmann was acquitted of three murders because absolute proof that he committed them was lacking.

The verdict parallels the opinions of experts who held that Haarmann was sane. It read:

"He knew he would kill when he saw his victims for the first time. Therefore he acted deliberately."

Supt. Maston Outlines Responsibilities of Living Under Flag of Freedom Before Class of New Americans at Citizenship Program at High School

A group of new citizens, their faces shining with radiance and joy received their certificates of citizenship from Miss Mabel Marsh county clerk, at the high school last night in the citizenship program.

Their appreciation was beyond measure. In broken English, Géza Kosmitz, formerly a Hungarian citizen, thanked Miss Marsh, Miss Gill who instilled the idea of citizenship through the work at the settlement, and others who aided the class in completing the requirements for American citizenship. Kosmitz spoke on behalf of the group in response to the welcoming address.

The principal address was delivered by R. G. Maston, superintendent of the city schools.

Maston outlined the responsibilities new citizens face in exercising their franchise and assuming their duties in keeping this land a land of liberty and freedom.

Liberty Means Service

"Liberty is the biggest word in the English language, so far as American citizens are concerned," he said.

"We have our statue of liberty, our liberty bell and our liberty halls. We had liberty bonds during the war. Liberty is a principle, a thing we enjoy for the sake of service that we can do for humanity.

"We would have each one of you believe that liberty means something that everyone should do, that each should recognize and exercise his right to the ballot.

WAR CLOUDS IN BALKAN ROW DARKEN

Albanian Insurrection May be Forerunner of Another European Conflict; Serbians Charged With Militaristic Agression

LONDON, Dec. 19.— Shadows of another Balkan War, a possible forerunner of another huge European conflict, were foreseen today in the Albanian insurrection by Konitza, Albanian minister to London.

He charged Serbia with instigating the trouble. But the Jugo-Slavian legation denied that Serbians were in any way involved.

"Unless some great power intervenes, another Balkan war is imminent, followed probably by a European War," the Albanian minister said.

"The trouble that has risen is due to the deliberate militaristic policy of aggression on the part of Serbia against Albania. There is a keen desire on the part of Serbia to annex Albania."

His charges were denied in a statement from the Jugo-Slavian legation.

SUNDAY DANCE BAN LOOMS IN LORAIN

Council Committee Recommends That Lid Be Clamped Onto Sabbath Desecrations; Citizens Present Many Complaints

LORAIN, Dec. 19.—Sunday dancing in Lorain should be prohibited, members of the Ordinance committee of city council ruled last night when they met to discuss the matter referred to them at the last regular council meeting.

Continuous complaints from residents, principally in South Lorain, led directly to the action. Mayor Hoffman told the council at its last session of numerous complaints made to him and requested that a committee investigate.

The charges involve jazz and annoying music, harsh and boisterous displays going on outside the halls and a generally disorderly condition.

Baird announced at the opening of the discussion that he is candidly opposed to Sunday dancing, explaining he believed there were other days in the week for such recreation. He urged that the committee recommend to council that the city solicitor draw legislation prohibiting all public dances on Sundays.

His stand was finally adopted after an argument in which the councilmen were unable to establish whether or not a dance held in a private club can be considered public. Safety Director Royce stated that in many communities clubs are formed and sell a membership, in this way legalizing dances.

Mayor Hoffman urged that Sunday dancing be abolished and stated, "When it gets so that it interferes with the happiness of people in the neighborhood, it is time to stop."

Councilman Urban said, "If they stop dancing on Sundays they'll dance some other night."

E. F. Maginnis of this city has begun injunctions proceedings in court against the Georgople Theatre Co., E. J. Georgople, H. H. Nye, Spiro Valassis, and Walter Watts, receiver.

The plaintiff alleges that Georgople and Valassis own $77,000 of preferred stock, and that Georgople, Nye and Valassis own common stock issued to them without consideration.

The plaintiff alleges that he owns one-half of common stock which he paid for; that Georgople is asking the receiver to allow him $25,000 held by him as notes which were issued without consideration in fraud of the rights of the stockholders and creditors. He asks for an injunction preventing the selling or transfer of the common or preferred stock, or the allowing of any claims on notes or the paying of dividends.

COUNTY HIGHWAY PROGRAM UNDER WAY

County Engineer C. M. Theobald is preparing plans and specifications for a number of improved county roads during 1925. He states that nearly all of the road improvements the coming year will have to be done by the county, as there will be but little state aid. In fact only about $8,000 will be available from the state unless the legislature makes some further provision.

During the past year considerable state work was done in connecting up the final links that made continuous state highways through the county. One section was at Oberlin, another east of Wellington, and one in Columbia township.

lot. American citizenship is a moral right, however. We must know about the men and issues for which we vote. No man has a right to vote unless he does understand what he is doing. This is to protect our citizenship.

"The American government rests upon the discharge of your responsibilities as an American citizen. We are here tonight under the protection of the American flag and the government. When we commit an offense against our neighbor we have committed an offense against our government.

"To vote, to give protection, to serve on a jury, to defend the flag and to accept our civic responsibilities is but to repay the government for its protection to us.

"We should be willing to pay our taxes that we may get our light, water, roads and institutions operated by the government. Our greatest national institution is our public school system, supported wholly by taxation. We must see that every child is given his educational privileges.

"Any man who comes to our land, accepts the protection of the American flag and earns his livlihood ought to be duty bound to accept the privileges and responsibilities of American citizenship or go back to the flag that he left. It is this that you have done."

Aged Citizen Speaks

William Dennington, a veteran citizen of 87 years who crossed the seas to America when a small child, stirred the audience with his testimony of faith in citizenship and in God. Liberty to him embodied the principles of justice and mercy and a realization of his obligation to God and to his fellow men, he said.

The aged man was asked to speak by Attorney George H. Chamberlain, chairman of the meeting, who introduced him as a citizen of the highest type, an example that these new citizens could well follow.

During the course of the program, Attorney Chamberlain, who is president of the Americanization Association, commended the new citizens on the step they had taken and urged them to exercise their citizenship to the fullest extent.

The chairman also revealed an ideal he said he had held for the celebration of the national holiday, July 4. A real celebration of that day would be in honor of all persons who had become naturalized or who had attained the age of 21 during the year.

A humorous reading was given by Miss Betty Stewart. Piano numbers were played by Mr. Swartzhaump. The invocation and benediction were pronounced by Rev. E. B. Redhead, pastor of St. Andrew's Episcopal Church.

Christian Methods Help Big Business to Succeed

"That's a cheering bit of news this bright autumn day," declared Joe Foye in the Boston Traveler recently: "'Christian practises applied to big business bring the biggest success' Edward Wentworth Beatty says so. He should know. He is the head of one of the biggest businesses in the world; president and chairman of the board of directors of an industry that employs more than 100,000 men and owns more than 120,000 miles of telegraph lines, 18 first-class hotels, a $17,000,000 irrigation enterprise, a fleet of nearly 100 big steamships, a 19,800 mile railroad and hundreds of thousands of acres of farm and mineral lands—the Canadian Pacific Railway and its associate companies.

"Mr. Beatty is in Boston and I interviewed him at his hotel. It is his 47th birthday anniversary. For six years he has headed what is almost a small empire. He was only 41 when he became president of the great railway company. And it is a great company; it can carry you almost anywhere in the world, house you, feed you, even supply a camel or donkey for you 600 miles up the Nile, in Egypt. I know. It was altogether encouraging to talk with this relatively young man. 'Modesty' is a trite word, but it fits him; he isn't shy, he is direct and sincere, and has a horror of being quoted in the first person. A big Bostonian once said that in Boston one is not old enough for a big job until he is 45, and then he is too old. What did Mr. Beatty think of that? Would he explain how he, at the age of 41, became head of the Canadian Pacific Railway?

"And he explained. Opportunity, he said, did it. If the opportunity came when one was young, so much the better, one arrived at the pinnacle of success while still young. He had entered the employ of the railway when he was 23, as an attorney. Time went on, and he became chief counsel. 'Because there was a vacancy.' Then he became vice president and finally president. Simple!

"That is the unvarnished story, he announced calmly. Quite unvarnished! Nothing of his own ability to fill the jobs offered him. None of that.

"Will you explain how it is done, so that other young men may know?' he was asked. There was no explanation other than the presence of opportunity and making the most of it. It wasn't strange that a young man should have an important position in England things were different. There it is believed that old age brings wisdom. The United States and Canada were young men's countries. Then he started to tell how a young man holds down a big job, but he declined to use himself as an example.

"Can a man conduct a big business and at the same time adhere to Christian practices?" I asked him. That seemed to me to have a very important bearing on the happiness of a people. He thought so, too.

"'Certainly,' he agreed with enthusiasm and absolutely without hesitation. 'Looking at the subject solely from a practical standpoint, it is best to play fair with everybody, with your employees and competitors and the public. In England this year at the advertising convention at Wembley, American advertising men told how honesty in advertising pays best. The same is true of other business. The square deal is the best policy after all. Big business is not coming to realize it. Big business has realized it all along, but as time goes on more and more big enterprises are finding it is best to play fair.'

"If big business is honest and conducts its affairs along Christian lines, will that business make more money?" Mr. Beatty was asked.

"'Unquestionably,' he stated.

"Aside from all that, Mr. Beatty's father was born in Ireland and his mother was a New Englander. He is a bachelor and doesn't play golf. He wears his hat at the same angle that Admiral Beatty wears his. He looks younger than he is and I should judge he would be a good man in a fight."

Wide World Contributes Costly Scents to Grace Milady's Boudoir

CHICAGO—"— to add a perfume to the violet."

Violet, one of the most popular and best known perfumes is also one of the most expensive, according to chemists of the Marinello company laboratories at LaCrosse Wis. A pound of violet oil which comes from Southern France is valued at $1,100. This is used widely not only in making perfume, but in imparting the odor to talcs powders and other cosmetics. Natural jasmine, from Grasse, in France, is another expensive vegetable perfume, costing about $800 the pound.

"Odors of perfumes are divided into three classes, vegetable, animal and chemical," said Emily Lloyd, founder of the Marinello company which manufactures more than 200 toilet preparations in daily use by several million American women. "Among the best known vegetable scents are sandal wood, from East Africa and India roscinary from Korea, lavendar from England and Germany, attar of roses from Bulgaria, tuberose from France, patchouly from the Himalayas, thyme from Algeria and Spain, and oil of lemon from Italy.

"Animal scents include musk ambergris, castor and civet. Chemists are constantly engaged in attempting to reproduce both animal and vegetable scents by chemical substitutes. Artificial peach odor is now made from castor oil, artificial jasmine from benzylacetate and bergamot from linalylacetate.

"The odor of toilet preparation is one of their chief sources of appeal. Exhaustive tests are made in our laboratories to insure the proper delicacy and naturalness required."

The large and varied assortment of basic perfumes and essential oils, costing $150,000 and more, is kept in a special safe adjacent to the Marinello laboratories.

Permanent Waves Cost Women of United States $150,000,000 Yearly

CHICAGO — Fashion is fast turning feminine heads into a sea of permanent waves which cost the women of the United States $150,000,000 a year, according to Charles Nestle of New York, inventor of the permanent wave, in an address here.

"Four thousand permanent-wave machines are now in use in the beauty parlors of the country," said Mr. Nestle. "In addition there are 50,000 home outfits for producing this style of coiffure. This means that 2,500,000 women annually are crowned with permanent waves.

"For straight haired women, the permanent wave is hair salvation. It is as becoming and convenient as naturally curly hair, and if not abused will last from six to eight months. After the first success enjoyed by the permanent wave has come the aftermath of criticism. Women declare that the life of the hair is sapped by it and that the ends break. This statement is not true. Such disasters result only where the wave has been inexpertly given or improperly cared for. Kinky hair is the result of bad methods. Any hair that has not been dyed or bleached will take a permanent wave without the least injury.

"The home outfits are very inexpensive and are used with success by thousands of women who have been sleeping in nightly curlers for years. After the simple process of home waving these women find that rainy days have their charms, for water and humidity cause waves to increase in beauty.

Agricultural Director American Bankers Association.

The Agricultural Commission of the American Bankers Association has adopted and encourages the following general projects in its national program:

D. H. Otis

1. Boys' and girls' club work.
2. Diversified farming.
3. Increased appropriations for agricultural research.

With the state bankers' associations, the agricultural colleges and hosts of farmers' organizations uniting in all parts of the country, the Commission has held conferences in forty-seven states. The different individual projects approved number 195.

Plans are now under way for follow-up work in making these programs effective.

These banker farmer conferences have resulted not only in definite programs, but they have been the means of greatly increasing interest on the part of bankers. At the beginning there were a number of states that had no agricultural committees. Others were inactive. We now have agricultural committees for each state with the exception of two, and these have promised to appoint committees soon.

Banker Influence

The attitude of the bankers is not that of attempting to tell the farmers how to farm, but rather to aid in bringing about conditions that will help the farmer to help himself. The farmer who produces, the agricultural college that is attempting to improve the quality of farm products and the banker who furnishes the capital are endeavoring to put their heads together and perform team work. A representative of one of the colleges of agriculture recently made the statement that the bankers could do more than the colleges for the advancement of agriculture. The banker is in position to influence the type of agriculture practiced by the farmer patrons. A county agent comes in contact with only 15 to 20 per cent of the farmers of his county, while the bankers come in contact with at least 75 per cent.

In some localities farmers seem to be prejudiced against bankers, due largely to misunderstanding. There is no better way for relieving this strained relationship than by getting the banker and farmer pulling together for their mutual interests and for the community.

If agriculture is to develop it is necessary to maintain on the soil men and women who will put as much intelligence into their business as is put into other lines of business. It is hard to change the attitude of mind of an old farmer. The great hope is in developing boys and girls into men and women who will be interested in improving the conditions on our farms. Out of forty-seven programs adopted at the banker farmer conferences, thirty-six included boys' and girls' club work as one of their leading projects.

Farm Accounting

A large number of bankers are recognizing the importance of inventories, financial statements and farm accounts and are encouraging the keeping of records among their farmer patrons. Not a few insist on a financial statement from the farmer before making a loan, just as is required of other business men. Such a statement not only acquaints the banker with the financial status of the farmer but also brings the farmer face to face with conditions on his farm and calls attention to opportunities for improvement.

In many states county bankers' associations are being organized with agricultural committees. In New Jersey every county is thus organized. Ohio has a representative of the agricultural committee in every county in the state. Wisconsin has added thirteen agricultural committees to its county organizations. In Arkansas education al trains have been run in cooperation with the railroads, the College of Agriculture, and others for stimulating interest in better farming methods. In Oregon the Bankers Association employs a field secretary to devote his entire time to carrying on educational and agricultural programs. In Kentucky special plans have been developed for coordinating the various organizations interested in agricultural development. Key men, bankers, have been appointed in sixty five counties. An annual income of $6,000 is provided and field secretary employed.

It will be seen that the efforts of the Agricultural Commission and the committees of the various states in cooperation with the colleges of agriculture, have been to formulate workable programs. The field for work appears unlimited. The spirit of the bankers and the colleges is superb and effective results will be accomplished.

MAY BOOST FEES FOR LORAIN CITY SEALER

LORAIN, Dec. 19.—A recommendation for an ordinance establishing a new set of fees to be charged by the city sealer was voted by the council committee on ordinances at its meeting last night.

The proposed ordinance is based on advices from the state department of weights and measures, according to Thomas E. Williams, city sealer.

Rates for testing scales, vessels and other measuring devices are raised under the ordinance and are established on a one-year basis, the longest time scales or other devices may be operated without testing.

Williams states that under the present ordinance he is compelled to make tests of milk bottles at 10 cents each, occupying considerable of his time for a fee which means practically nothing. The proposed ordinance would charge a minimum fee of one dollar with as many tests as necessary during the year. New rates will be established on all scales ranging from small counter scales to large car scales.

ABE MARTIN On Team Work

TH' OLE TIME DOCTOR WOULD OCCASIONALLY PLAY A LITTLE CROQUET IF HE COULDN' GIT OUT O' IT

When we look at our fine, dapper doctors o' t'day as they whizz here an' there in ther high-powered cars, performin' marvelous operations an' savin' scores o' human lives without th' aid o' whiskers an' plug hats an' shiny frock coats, we begin t' realize that we've lived t' witness great changes An' our doctors o' t'day find time t' keep ther communities tuned up an' in good health an' also identify 'emselves with th' civic life o' ther towns an' cities. An' believe us, keepin' up with th' civic life o' our time an' attendin' t' business too, is goin' some We know a fine, young lung expert that made eighteen holes in 74, yisterday, an' also remounted four sets o' lungs, took in a movie in th' afternoon, an' solicited fer th' community chest 'til 10 p m If you break a leg, or git poisoned, jest you watch an' see how soon your doctor kin git t' you from th' golf links, or a theater It's amazin'' O' course if a feller's bleedin' t' death an' his doctor is addressin' a commercial club meetin', or attendin' a stone layin', it makes it sort o' ticklish But sa[illegible] been handled successfully When Art Smiley's nephew fell off a smoke stack Dr Mopps wuz on th' spot in his golf clothes jest as he lit. "I could have caught him" Doc said, "if they'd 'phoned me a minute sooner" But we don't think a doctor ought t' be bothered when somebuddy falls two or three hundred feet, or gits his head shot off Why should a doctor drop his civic work, or leave a $2 performance t' try t' save somebuddy that's dead? Doctors are allus being called away right in th' middle of a golf game or theatrical performance, an' then when they git where ther goin' th' patient's liable t' live four or five hours yit It don't look fair Th' doctors o' thirty an' forty years ago did little civic work, an' cared less fer th' theater They stuck t' business an' often it took 'em nine or ten hours t' drive t' a case o' mumps, or a sore toe They wuz very dignified an' mussy an' raised great bunches o' whiskers an' ther plug hats wuz allus rubbed th' wrong way Ther frock coats wuz too big an' they all smelled like a horse. A big, round, or tall dignified, bewhiskered, livery stable smellin' doctor o' thirty five years ago would no more swap his plug hat an' Prince Albert coat fer a golf outfit than he'd jump off th' court house He might, if he couldn git out o' it, play a little croquet but he took himself too seriously t' wear a uniform, or git very fer from his office.

TODAY'S BEST STORY

Those faddists who believe they are playing with something newly developed when they search their brain for few-letter words to complete the cross-word puzzle, have another guess coming

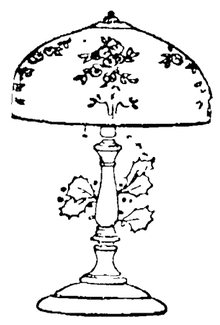

"They're as old as the hills," intoned U. S. Vance, professor of journalism at Akron University, discussing mah jong's successor.

"They have been used in teaching journalism," said Vance, "ever since John Campbell published his first News-Letter in 1704."

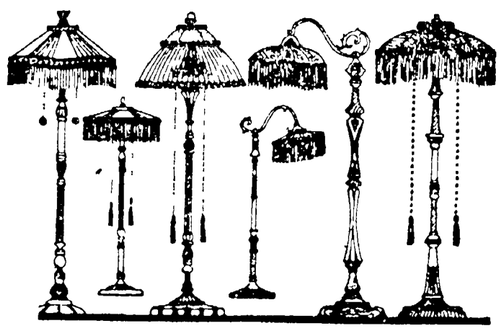

Writing headlines, according to the instructor, is a series of word puzzles, involving a search for an elusive word that is of a given number of letters and familiar.

"SPIRIT OF 76" WAS OFTEN COPIED

Famous Painting Is Background For "Spirit of U. S. A." at Grand Theater Next Week — Special Matinee for School Children Next Wednesday

Unusual interest is centered in the patriotic film, "Spirit of U. S. A.," in view of the fact that the "Spirit of 1776" painted in this county by Willard in 1875.

The painting was first sketched near Wellington and consequently residents of the southern part of the county are planning to see the picture when it comes to the Grand theatre next week.

Next week Wednesday, Dec. 24, will be "Soldiers' Day" and a specially low priced matinee has been arranged for this date for the school children of Elyria and Lorain county, this being especially arranged in view of the fact that all schools will be closed for the first day of the Holiday vacation next Wednesday.

Concerning this famous painting depicted in the coming film, the Wellington Enterprise says:

"Herrick library has become in the past few days the recipient of a highly valued loan—that of a painting and two crayon sketches dealing with the famous subject, "The Spirit of '76" painting in Wellington by Willard 47 years ago

"Dr. William E Barton, of Oak Park, Ill., a former minister here, has loaned the works, which include one of the few existing copies of Willards' "Spirit of '76" painted by the artist himself especially for Mr Barton, to the library for an indefinite period.

"One of the crayon sketches is the first made by Willard of the subject, and although begun as a joke it was the inspiration for the great painting which is known to every school boy and girl in the land.

The other sketch is the last one done before the actual painting was made.

"An article published in 1915 tells better than anyone else could of the three works of art which Dr Barton has loaned the library All the persons mentioned were once of Wellington, the artist having lived here when the famous painting was made, and Mr Sawtelle having been a photoghapher here

"The article follows

"Dr William E Barton has added another to his collection of valuable paintings, this one being a replica in oil of Willard's The Spirit of '76' Dr Barton and the artist were friends in Wellington, where the original painting was made, and came into possession of the original crayon sketch of the painting

"Mr. Willard had presented this to Mr Sawtelle, a photographer, who assisted him in the poses of the characters for the painting. Mr. Sawtelle kept it for his death Mr. Sawtelle presented it to Dr. Barton Mr. Willard later presented him the sketch which embodied the first idea of the picture, as a cartoon of an old fashioned Fourth of July celebration with the hayfield musicians tossing their drumsticks and treading on each others toes.

"These two have been hung side by side in Dr Barton's study for many years and have been objects of interest for hundreds of visitors. Mr. Willard visited Dr Barton in Boston, but he had never been to see him in Chicago until last summer (1914) when the preparedness parade brought Mr. Willard as a guest of honor and he saw the great parade headed by three living figures made up from his painting

"At this time he visited Dr Barton in whose home he had not been in many years. The visit resulted in an arrangement that Willard should paint another 'Spirit of '76' in size suitable for Dr. Barton's requirements He spent a good part of the summber in this work which he took up with remarkable ardor and with such success that he believes this to be the best rendering of the subject he has made

"Mr Wilard is now over 80 years of age and a man of commanding height and appearance He was a soldier in the Civil War and made a reputation as a painter of humorous pictures, which were produced as chromos. He painted "The Spirit of '76" just 40 years ago and it was the most notable painting at the Centennial at Philadelphia. The painting, begun as a joke and finished in a fine fervor of patriotism, proved the turning point in his career.

"The original exhibited in Philadelphia is in Marblehead Mass. It is life size. A smaller one was burned in a great fire in Cleveland; a large one is in the new city hall in Cleveland. Altogether he has painted this subject something like a half dozen times."

The people of Wellington are very happy over the loan of this noteworthy copy of Willard's famous picture."

BILLY WHISKERS

BY FRANCES TREGO MONTGOMERY

Everybody was excited about the disorder Nannie had caused in the farmhouse where she was imprisoned.

The outcome of it all was that the farmer and his son had to stay all night and sleep with their guns beside them, as Mrs. Woodberry was so wrought up and excited that she would not stay in the house without some man to guard them. And while Mrs. Woodberry went to bed with fear and trembling and the hired girl slept on the lounge in her room too afraid to go to her own room in the attic, the boys fell asleep wondering if it was Nannie that had made all the mess in the house, and little Nannie herself was continuing on her way rejoicing at her happy release.

In the big three hundred by two hundred foot studio room of the Emmanenn Company's place the stage was being set for a scene where all the animals were to appear in characters like thos seen on the billboards and the one Nannie was now hurrying to Chicago to see, scarcely stopping to eat or sleep, she was so afraid she would arrive too late.

After much mopping of foreheads and loud calling for the keepers to bring on the animals that were to take part in the play and to be sure to have them in place when the camera man began to wind off the film, Mr. Dates was about to call "Shoot!"—which in studio language means to begin to grind off the films—when there was commotion behind him. Turning to look, he saw three of his men trying to hold a lily white goat which was struggling in their arms. And as he looked it escaped the men straight for the stage and with one bound was up on it and licking Billy's nose and frisking around him like mad. Of course you all know that this goat was none other than Nannie.

She had easily found her way to the studio. Arriving there, she had seen the big gate-like door that gave entrance to the studio yard standing open and no one being around she had run in. Once in, she looked about and saw one of the big doors open which gave into the larger studio rooms so she ran up to it. And luck would have it that this door led right into the studio where the play in which Billy was acting was being staged for the final production.

Having seen the picture on the billboards, she recognized the one on the stage as the same, so knew just where to look for Billy. Consequently when once she saw him, no twenty men could have stopped her. Thus it was that Mr Dates held back his final word "Shoot!" for twenty seconds. Then he called it out in a loud voice, and Nannie was taken in the picture along with Billy and the rest of the animals. Instead of Nannie spoiling the picture, she added much to it

Theatres

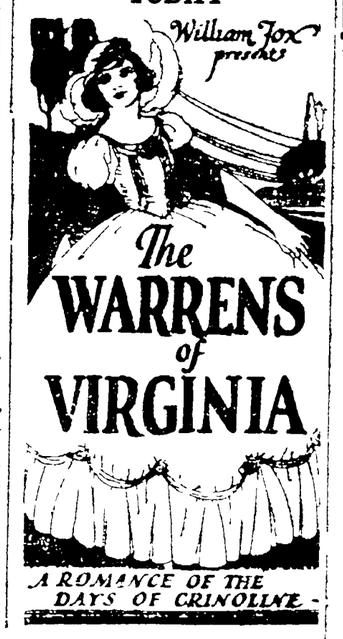

RIVOLI—"The Warrens of Virginia" This is a charming picture, a William Fox special, dealing with the affairs of an old Virginia family. There is a military scene, that stirs the blood, and a number of other scenes of special interest The picture is well recommended by those who have seen it. Also a good comedy.

GRAND—This picture has the peculiar name of "The Female." It carries the idea that the mother instinct is the same in animal as in human life, and that no matter what happens the female is always found ready to protect and care for those they love. Also a new comedy and the news pictures.

DREAMLAND—Lillian Gish in "The White Sister," a picture that made her famous. Also as good as they make Approximately 52,000 women served in the American army during the Civil War, the Spanish War and the World War. In the last war 11,000 nurses in Government pay were sent overseas, while 15,000 were on duty in camps in this country.

A memorial is to be unveiled at Camp Merritt, N. J., May 30, in honor of the 600,000 men who passed through the camp on their way to and from France during the World War. At least 50,000 people are expected to attend the ceremonies.

New Hudson River Bridge Opened

BEAR MT. LINK A SHORT CUT FOR MOTORISTS

The New Hudson River Bridge at Bear Mountain now open. Last work was laying of a 38 foot wide asphalt roadway.

DRIVERS of automobiles, tourists and truck drivers in every part of the country and especially those of New York State and New England had special cause for giving thanks on Thanksgiving Day this year—the opening to traffic of the great, new highway suspension bridge across the Hudson River above New York City, where Bear Mountain and that other hump of the Peckskills, Anthony's Nose, face each other from opposite banks.

The running time by motor from Albany to New York is now considerably shortened via the new Storm King Highway and the new bridge, since the bridge will relieve motorists of tiresome waits for down-river ferries. The new bridge, the only highway span south of Albany, was built by a private corporation. It is the longest single span highway bridge of the suspension type in the world. It is fireproof throughout, and the last thing to be completed before the structure was thrown open to traffic at 7 a. m. on Thanksgiving Day was the 38-foot wide asphalt roadway over which motor vehicles will cross the bridge. Work on the roadway was rushed to the last minute in order that the opening ceremonies might not be delayed.

Of steel and asphalt the new structure is not only fireproof but storm resistant. The huge span, 155 feet above the river, stretches for a distance of 1632 feet and, with the approaches, gives the bridge a total length of 2260 feet.

The main towers are 350 feet high and carry cables a foot and a half in diameter, each cable being made up of 7,462 parallel wires each 192 one-thousandths of an inch thick. The roadway contains 10,000 square yards of asphalt, two inches thick on the main span and 2¾ inches thick on the approaches.

From the bridge, wonderful panoramic views of the Hudson and the Highlands are seen. The ride across the bridge and thence via West Point over the Storm King highway provides one of the most magnificent scenic routes in the eastern part of the United States.

Sermongrams

BY CARL YODER

Revenge is sweet, but forgiveness is sweeter.

Prayer weaves into your nature the Divine Spirit.—Wirpel.

We think from Principle as we act from principles.

When you think you are wise you are usually otherwise.

Prayer keys your nature so that God can play upon it.

Frequently a well-fed body houses a half starved soul.

You express gratefulness to God by doing kindness to man.

The modern church prefers a live wire to an inflated tire.

When you speak an untruth you blur the windows of your soul.

The thoughts you think indicate the path you will travel along.

Religion is the oasis in this desert of human trials and experience.

If you are not kind or courteous to another, you are the main sufferer.

Duty to God is never fulfilled unless expressed in greater service to man.

Every friend you make adds health, strength and well-being to your nature.

Some people have palace-car adornments without, but log-cabin furnishings within.

The ideas you let play in your mind always leave behind some token of their presence.

There will never be liberty in the world until righteousness dominates every soul.

No idea is beyond us if we will but chisel away the obstructions in our lower nature.

Your genuine interest in others is an achievement that yields dividends of friendship.

Religionizing the American will be the best means of Americanizing the immigrant.

Let us be thankful for life, for its privileges, its duties, its friendships, for home and love.

There will never be a lasting peace between individuals and nations until men are at peace with God.

CHURCH FORUM

(Send problems in question form; answers will appear in later issue).

1. How may we make the Sunday School lessons apply to the life of today?

Relate the study to present-day happenings—and translate your thoughts into action.

2. Of what use are moving pictures in the church?

Any carefully-chosen picture—well adapted should be highly educational. Many pictures have been used as a nucleus for worship. There are many of the Old Testament as well as New Testament Bible stories that will be impressed indelibly upon the minds of your people through the motion picture—also many of the old hymns that have paved the way of the church.

Another asks us if it would be advisable to purchase a moving picture machine with the thought of increasing church and Sunday school attendance. In this connection it is doubtful if the addition of moving pictures would result in any noticeable increase in attendance. Sensational features of any kind may attract for a time, but in the end the interest usually wanes, and a new attraction must be added. Put the emphasis therefore upon the type of work done in the school, not using the moving picture as a bait.

3. How can parents be made to feel their responsibility in regard to sending their children to Sunday school regularly?

Lack of Co-operation of the home in the educational task of the church is due to a lack of knowledge of what the school is really doing for the youth of the church. Visit the homes acquainting the parents with the salient features of the educational program; invite the parents to the conferences during the year jointly considering the problems of each; establish a parents' library and see that it is circulated; keep the home in touch with every advanced movement of the school seeking at all times to serve the home as opportunities arise.

4. Dou young persons who have been forced to go to church while at home generally react against church attendance and activities when they go to a new place—such as college?

We have never known such a case. When the church at home puts upon its young people the tasks having definitely and only to do with the establishment of the Kingdom of God they will jump in head first when they go to a new place. Is the church at home interested in the great things in which the youth are interested? They are passionately stirred on the iniquities of housing the poor, the tragedy of armaments, and the wrongs of oppressed nations. If church life is made attractive in developing the whole life—he will not long be forced to go.

HOME EDUCATION

By Carl Yoder

Truth Rather Than Position

"I want a very fine weave in this material," said a customer to a young clerk who knowing that such was not in stock said, "I am sorry, but we have nothing with a finer weave."

The proprietor hearing the conversation was indignant and later said to the young clerk, "Why did you not show other goods? You are here to make sales and never to let a customer leave if it is possible to sell him anything."

"But we did not have the quality in the store that he wanted, and when he asked me a plain question, to be honest, I had to tell him that we had nothing with a finer weave."

"Young man," said the proprietor, "if you can't stretch the truth a little to fit the circumstances, you will never do for me."

"Very well, if I must tell falsehoods in order to keep my place, I must lose it. That's all."

This clerk was Marshall Field, who later became one of the kings of commerce, while the dishonest employer became a bankrupt and died in poverty.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

LIVE QUESTIONS FOR DISCUSSION ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON—God's Gift to the World (Christmas Lesson)—John 1:4-18; 3:16-21—for Sunday, December 21st.

1. Do you regard the term "word" a good one to describe Jesus Christ in his relation to the Father God? Why?

2. What is next important to being the light in this case

3. What is it to be a child of God in the highest and truest sense? ?

How do men's treatment of Christ show and determine their character?

4. How would the preaching of John 3:16, 17 hasten world world peace and universal brotherhood?

5. Why is the coming of Christ in the flesh the greatest of God's gifts to man?

6. How can we keep the spirit of Christmas in our Christmas celebrations?

CLERICUS SAYS: You may as well divorce the thought from the word in living speech. You may as well divide the soul from the body, and hope to leave the living man, as you may separate from the gospel of the New Testament, from the religion which calls itself Christianity, the belief in the Word made flesh.

LESSON PRAYER

Dear Father, we thank thee for thy unmeasured love to us. We are here today because of this. Remind us all of thy great gift of love to us and of the tidings of great joy. In this time of rejoicing when our hearts are filled with gifts and giving, may we not forget the cost of our salvation, and may we be such messengers of the Gospel that others who do not yet know thee may find a new message in this Christmas time. We ask it in the name of Jesus. Amen.

BOOK REVIEW.

The World's Greatest Religious Poetry, by Dr. Caroline Miles Hill, The MacMillan Company, New York, is a collection furnishing delightful reading and consolation to restore the soul as well as to supply material for the study of the history and psychology of religion, arranged in 12 religious concepts. A war-weary world in search of faith turns to the great poets today.

God's Best Secrets, by Andrew Murray, The Biola Book Room, 536-558 S. Hope St., Los Angeles, Cal., helps Christians to see the absolute necessity of intercourse with the Lord Jesus. Suggestions for giving God time day by day in the inner chamber fill the chapters.

WORLD RELIGIOUS NEWS

Central Congregational church, Topeka, Kan., served by Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps" for thirty-five years, has completed and dedicated a $120,000 parish house as a memorial to Dr. Sheldon.

Prof. George Palmer has endowed a professorship in history at the University of Michigan as a memorial to his wife, Alice Freeman Palmer, one of the most distinguished graduates of the university. The terms of the gift direct that the chair shall be filled by a woman.

Following his retirement from the pulpit of the First Presbyterian church, New York City, March 1st of next year, Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick announces that he will spend a year in travel and study in Egypt and Palestine. This is the first time in twenty years that Dr. Fosdick has had an opportunity for a Sabbatical year vacation.

There is a Christian-owned plant in China that is impressing tourists. The Commercial Press in Shanghai was started by Christian Chinese and has always been run on Christian principles, though a paying business enterprise. Five hundred out of three thousand employees are professing Christians. There is a nine-hour day, no Sunday work, a grant of two months pay for mothers at time their babies are born, a nursery where mothers can bring their babies, a primary school, a dispensary, an attractive garden and a club building. There are bonuses, a savings department and retiring grants, and about everything up-to-date. The capital is $5,000,000 and there is not a foreigner connected with the concern.

Canada's "United Church," the coalition of Presbyterians, Methodists and Congregationalists, will be formally created next June when the governing councils of the three denominations will meet separately and together during the same week in Toronto. It is expected that the Presbyterian congregations that will decide prior to that time not o join the United church will be about 25 per cent of the denomination.

The Presbyterian Synod of California has under way plans for building equipping and endowing a colony of homes for retired ministers, to consist of a central building surrounded by a number of small bungalows. A fund of not less than $500,000 will be required to carry the scheme to completion but this is expected to provide a real home for old age.

A Hamilton-Jefferson Association was organized at Utica, New York recently, among members being fifty Protestants nearly all Masons, and a like number of Catholics the majority of whom affiliated with the Knights of Columbus. It is declared to be a non-secret, non-sectarian, and non-partisan group to foster patriotic ideals and a spirit of toleration in economics, politics and religion. Elihu Root, formerly Secretary of the Interior, gave the address at the organization.

The statistical department of the city of Tokyo reports the following losses and damages caused by the earthquake and fire in Japan: Tokyo, $1,900,000,00; Yokohama, $590,000,000, other areas, $250,000,000. This does not include losses of treasures and personal property. With these included losses would total $5,000,000,000.

Payment of a bonus to 568,364 men and women of New York State who served in the World War will begin in May or June. The bonus, $10 a month for every month of service with a maximum award of $150, will be distributed through local posts of veterans' organizations. Every person who was a resident of the State upon entering the service is entitled to this compensation.

Viscount Given Unenviable Job

To Viscount Peel has been given the unenviable task of notifying Lady Astor, member of the British parliament and former American, that her portrait is to be removed from the walls of the House of Commons. The objection to the portrait was the setting of a precedent as Lady Astor's was the first portrait of an active member to be hung in the House.

How Lee Chow Helped Get Junior Swiftly to the Hospital.

A REAL angel with wings could not have been a more welcome vision to my eyes than was Lee Chow when he appeared at the side of the car with the announcement that he would drive home, so that I might hold my suddenly afflicted little son in my lap.

It did not occur to me to question Lee Chow's ability to manage the car. He had proved himself so able a citizen in other directions that I accepted his own valuation of his skill. That he had served Hugh Grantland acceptably, moreover, was proof enough of his value in any emergency, for I knew that the army officer, though kind, was an exacting master.

Marion Is Diplomatic.

"Thank you, Lee Chow," I said gratefully, and put my foot upon the step of the car when Katie clasped my arm and whispered excitedly in my ear.

"Plees Meesis Graham no let dot Chin' drive us. He sa[illegible] take us all away some place keel us all shoost as he try to keel Junior shoost now. Plees dear Meesis Graham."

Her face was white and strained and genuine terror was mirrored in her eyes. So infectious was her fear that for a [illegible] second my own heart faltered. [illegible] in another second I had rallied my common sense, and whispered back sternly:

"Katie, you are only hindering me by this nonsense. Get into the car at once, for I must get this child to a physician as soon as I can."

She turned away obediently, but I saw her gaze roving from the front seat beside Lee Chow to the seat beside me in the rear, and knew that she would not mount to the seat in front unless I gave her the explicit order. Before I could speak, however, Marion with [illegible] an apparently eager query.

"Auntie Madge, if you don't need me in the back seat, [illegible] I sit in front with Lee Chow?"

"Of course, [illegible]," I answered with quick relief, and Katie [illegible] climbed into the seat beside me, as Marion clambered up beside the [illegible] passive driver.

He turned to me when we were finally [illegible]

[illegible] town?"

My answer was prompt, for I already had been debating the question in my own mind.

"Which Way?"

"Drive directly to Southampton Hospital," I said. "We are only about an hour's drive from there, and I have no idea where I could find a physician before that town."

I did not add the most potent argument for the hospital, that if I did find a doctor I would not know how competent he was to recognize and combat the strange poison which was affecting my little lad's face.

My experience with the child told me that he was not what mothers call "heart sick," and that the poison was not troubling his digestive organs. Therefore I was willing to risk the delay in treatment for the sake of obtaining the best authority possible.

I knew that Dr. Pettit would be at the hospital at five o'clock, for Katherine was on night duty with a patient of his who was in a most critical condition, and I had heard her say that the physician made a call there every day at that hour. Barring accidents we should be at the hospital in plenty of time to secure his services.

There are times when I dislike Dr. Pettit and there is something about his personality which always grates upon my nerves, but there is no physician in whose skill I have more confidence. I often wish I did, for between us there are memories, some ludicrous, some tragic, some simply tiresome—which I think neither of us cares to recall, and our occasional meetings hold embarrassment for both of us. But there is no doctor nearer than the great city to whose care I would be willing to confide my loved ones.

Lee Chow gave me no reply save a nod of the head as he started the car and drove it toward the main road with an ease which showed experience. It was characteristic of his economy of words that, although I was sure he was unfamiliar with the Long Island countryside, he spoke no word until he reached the Main Highway, when he asked a single question.

"Which way?"

I indicated the direction, and with no further comment Lee Chow turned the car toward the east and drove it silently, skilfully, swiftly until I showed him the turn that led us directly to the door of the big hospital.

TODAY'S BEST STORY

Chasing bulls has become an added duty of Cincinnati motorcycle Patrolmen.

Escaping from a slaughter pen of a packing plant, a large ferocious looking bull dashed down a side street, with two motorcycle cops in pursuit.

Not having lariats the policemen could only follow the animal. Suddenly he changed his course and headed for the railroad yards where, after being unable to shove a freight aside, the beast climbed into a box car.

The cops slammed the door and sent for a cow puncher to take the bull in tow.

Base pay of enlisted men in the United States army and Marine Corps ranges from $21 to $126 a month according to which of the seven grades due chiefly to length of service they are in. There are bonuses of $25 and up for re-enlistments.

Church In Its Attitude Toward Sex Love

Bishop of Chelmsford Replies to Hypocrisy Charges Made by King's Physician.

LONDON, Dec. 19.—Vigorous defense of the church and its attitude towards sex love and birth control has been made by the bishop of Chelmsford, replying to charges made by Lord Dawson, of Penn, the King's physician.

Lord Dawson in a frank speech declared that the attitude of the church with regard to sex love and birth control was working an evil.

The Bishop of Chelmsford in replying declares that Lord Dawson hasn't made a case against the church.

"Lord Dawson seems to think that the church condemns sex love," said the Bishop. "He speaks of it as a possession which the church should bless—not ignore or condemn. He reflects upon the hypocrisy which is pushed upon the clergy in the matter, who in normal married life practise sex love while they are compelled in their teachings implicitly to condemn it.

"Surely Lord Dawson misunderstands us.

"The clergy are not hypocrites in this matter. sex love is not cursed. It is the improper and excessive indulgence of it which meets with, and merits, condemnation. All the world loves a lover, and the church is no exception. It is no wet blanket to joyous courtship and happy marriage in all the manysidedness of their experience. It condemns and helps to guard society against, the perversions of it which we see in the divorce court, the criminal courts and on the streets. Here we gratefully acknowledge the help which the great profession, of which Lord Dawson is so distinguished a member is ever giving us in maintaining a Christian standard.

"I repudiate the accusation, if he means sex love as he himself defines it.

"Let this be added lest there be any misunderstanding. The church believes that to live a pure and chaste life both before and after marriage is for both sexes the unchangeable Christ an standard, attainable and attained, through the help of the Holy Spirit, and, moreover, that such a life is an essential condition of real human happiness.

"Our young people especially need our sympathy, our help, and our engagement. We must help them to stand firm, we must help them, too, when they fall, but we must not lower the standard or allow them to think it is unattainable. For the unmarried to try to 'sin in safety,' for the married to turn the marriage state into mere sensual indulgence — these things are disastrous in themselves and contrary to the spirit of Christianity. Here, too, we believe we have the approval, as we know we have the help, of the great body of the medical profession.

"If, however, as I believe, sexual love is a part of married life and has a proper value of its own in the consummation and maintenance of the marriage relationship in deep-rooted and lasting affection, the problem of the family at once arises."

The Bishop declares that he finds it abhorrent for young married people to "live a selfish life in a childless home," but on the other hand "for most folk to have as many children as possible" may be equally selfish and unkind, alike to mother, to the children, and to society.

"Selfishness is bad, whether it be the selfishness of restriction or that of indulgence."

Working Girls Find Club Aid In Business and Social Advancement

AT THE CLUB

CHICAGO — Congenial creative work and greater cultural education are brought within reach of every ambitious girl by the chaperoned down-town girls' Club of recent years, according to Miss Mary L. Downes, High Chief Ranger of the Women's Catholic Order of Foresters.

"The Women's Catholic Foresters' Club here in Chicago has been the means of opening thousands of doors for girls who work," Miss Downes said. "Miss Catherine Hayes, manager of the club, and Miss Mary Sheridan, cashier, both comment on the large number of girls who come in from their office work, have dinner, and go on to night classes. They are girls who were obliged to go to work as young as possible. They had to learn the thing that promised the best salary with the least preparation. Some girls put aside secret ambitions to do this. Some of them developed ambitions after they began work.

"The Foresters' Club which serves excellent meals at reasonable prices, and provides an attractive waiting place between office and class hours makes it possible for these girls who live at a distance from the down-town district to attend night classes when otherwise staying down town frequently would be impossible."

The Federal Government now has two soldiers' homes where former service women are admitted, though their disabilities are not directly traceable to the war. The War Department's provision does not recognize an ywomen except those who served with the army, the navy, and the Marine Corps. The women who incurred disabilities while in service of other organizations must be cared for by their own groups, through private subscription.

As special honor to the region of Tuscany, Premier Mussolini recently selected war-maimed former soldiers as candidates for the House of Deputies in Tuscany, Italy.

STATISTICIAN TRACES PATH OF RECOVERY OF BUSINESS

BABSON PARK, Mass., Dec. 19. Business is again at normal according to Roger W. Babson, the statistician, who today issued a detailed statement covering the business and financial situation.

"General activity as reflected by the Babsonchart is shown at 'par' for the first time in eight months," says the statistician. "The final November figures, just in, bring the line up from a point 8 per cent below normal where business stood at election time. The readings by months trace the path of decline during the early part of 1924 and picture clearly the advance that has taken place since the election. January saw business at 2 per cent above normal The momentum from the last month of 1923 was still keeping activity at a good volume. February continued at the same level In March, in spite of the usual seasonal spurt, we saw things drop to 1 per cent above normal. Further slowing up in April took us back to 4 per cent below normal and from then on business fell off rather badly May showed activity at 8 per cent below normal, June registered at 12 per cent below normal, and July at 11 per cent below normal. August finally reached the bottom, activity averaging at about 13 per cent below normal. September ad Octobr suffered from the uncertainties attending the election and were recorded as 10 per cent and 6 per below, respectively On the eve of the election business stood at 8 per cent below normal Today it has made up this loss and things stand at an even balance

"Normal Business"

"You may wonder just what is meant by 'normal business' and an explanation is certainly due We have heard of normalcy in business' and an explanation is certainly due We have heard of normalacy in business and we have heard about pre-war conditions. Other comparisons have been made with the boom year of 1919 and still others with the depression year of 1921. So many different bases have been used and the term 'normal' has been applied loosely to mean so many things that our present use should be carefully defined In studying business conditions and the changes in the business weather here at Babson Park, we show the fluctations on a large chart which combines all the 26 leading barometers of business into one picture. So far as general activity is concerned the path of business is defined by two lines on this chart. The central one, or so-called X Y line, follows the path of National growth regardless of the immediate situation It pictures total transactions and reflects the real expansion of business, commerce, and finance. The second line which runs alternately above and below it shows the exact present condition of trade. In their interpretation these two lines might be likened to a tree. The tree grows a little each year as is shown by the rings you see in the cross section of its trunk. This growth is slow and hardly spectacular enough to interest us much. At certain seasons of the year, however, the tree does show activity on the surface that changes the appearance of things. In the spring, when the leaves are budding, it seems to be growing rapidly, but in the autumn, when these same leaves shrivel and fall, the tree looks as though it were dying. It is somewhat the same with business and these two lines that meaure its two kinds of progress. The X-Y line traces the gradual growth regardless of season while the line of present activity reflects the surface development of the individual season.

"Our business and financial worlds are beset by 'seasons' even as the tree is, except that the changes from prosperity to decline, from decline to depression, from depression to improvement, and from improvement to prosperity do not occur with any regularity as to time Business seasons are of varying length and of different intensities These changes have made money for many people, and have carried others to their graves. In fact, the presence of extreme fluctations in conditions presents one of the greatest problems in our commercial and economic worlds today. Abnormal prosperity gives us false ideas of values. Easy profits due to rising prices and speculation undermine our habits of work and thrift We become interested in spending rather than earning, then the great basis Law of Action-Reaction steps in and a depression results. Losses wipe out business profits, the bread lines form, and by suffering and by want, we again learn the fundamental lessons of industry and thrift As our overdraft on the bank of prosperity is gradually paid back by the hard process of working more and spending less, things gradually improve and business comes back into balance.

Extremes Dangerous.

"Either extreme is dangerous and we are really soundest when activity coincides most closely with the normal X-Y Line of National growth. By normal business then we mean that activity is neither running ahead, nor lagging behind the X-Y Line, but is running at the fastest pace we can continue to hold Normal business is healthy business and at present, business is in exactly this normal healthy position.

"President Coolidge has emphasized the necessity for 'stabalization' in the present situation," concluded Mr. Babson. "Secretaries Mellon and Hoover are stressing economy and the dangers of inflatation The government is awake to the tremendous advantages of this normal situation and the losses that will inevitably accrue if the present improvement is allowed to develop into a spree of speculation. Personally, I have spent the last twenty years in an effort to cut down these jumps and bumps in American business, to lesson extremes and to eliminate loss and suffering by helping business men to keep nearer to this line of normal growth. It is improbable that these fluctations will ever be completely eliminated but as more businessmen and more wage workers recognize these changes in the business weather their results are modified and the penalties imposed by this economic law become less. We are approaching the period of temptation when the urge to gamble, to get without earning, is strong If we can only remember that we get what we pay for and we pay for what we get; if we can only continue to work as hard as we have worked during this year to get back to normal, all will go well and we shall not have to face the unpleasant task of paying the fiddler.

STUDENTS SEE PLANS FOR STADIUM

OBERLIN, Dec. 19. — Plans from which the main idea in constructing Oberlin's new stadium will be taken were shown in Finney Chapel Thursday evening by Secretary Jones

He described the plans for the campaign to raise the necessary $65,000 for the stadium and told of what work has already been done.

Several subscriptions of $25 00 each have already been received toward the structure, and the real campaign will begin in earnest after the vacation, according to Jones.

At the "Sing" Professor Sherman showed slides of some of Oberlin's ancient buildings, such as the first gymnasium, costing $1,000 and the first Chemical Laboratory, a little one story stone cabin.

Music was furnished by the college band, Arthur Williams on the trumpet and Dr. Andrews at the organ. The meeting was closed with a short talk by President King. This was the last pre-holiday event of the college.

RAIN AND COLD GRIP SHORE COUNTIES

Weather conditions have been at their worst for the past three days The temperature has been mild, and at noon today stood at 42 degrees. Meanwhile the skies are overhung with heavy rain clouds, and intermittent showers have taken place both day and night.

As a result the pavements are dangerous to travel on, and the Christmas trade has been slowed up. Today's predictions are that it will grow colder with a prospect of snow.

SANDUSKY, O., Dec. 19.—Instead of the blizzard predicted by weather authorities, a spring rain with an occasional ash of lightning, followed by a rumble of thunder, descended on this locality last night. Rain began to fall in torrents at 11 p. m., and continued uninterruptedly until six this morning.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 19.—Rain has been falling continuously in Cleveland for more than thirty-six hours, with no apparent prospects of cessation.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19.—Temperatures in many parts of the country are breaking all records for December, the U. S. Weather Bureau announced today. A warning was issued that freezing temperatures may be expected to go as far south as Central Florida by Monday.

WATER MENACE TO NAVIGATION IS FOUGHT BY U. S. ARMY

Beautiful River Flowers Impede Progress of Vessels in Southern Streams.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 19—Uncle Sam, hard-headed business man rather than sentimental beauty-lover, has set out on a determined campaign to root out the hyacinth, one of the Southland's most beautiful scenic "props," from navigable rivers and bayous in Florida, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana and Texas, as a menace to navigation. A half million dollars have been expended in years past in an effort to clear the rivers of this plant, and in the annual report of the Chief of Engineers, United States Army, recommending allotments for improving navigation on harbors and rivers, an additional $10,000 is asked for to continue the work of destroying the water plants during the coming year.

The water hyacinths are found in the fresh water streams in various parts of the States along the Mississippi and the Gulf of Mexico, where there is not sufficient current to carry them away. At times they have become a serious obstruction to navigation on the St. John's, Withlacoochee, Caloosahatchee and Kissimee rivers and their tributaries, in Florida, and on numerous bayous and smaller streams throughout the other States.

The hyacinth is not a native of the South, but was carried there in some manner fifty years ago and since then has grown and spread rapidly, as it is propagated not only by seeds but by roots and stems, carried along by the sluggish currents. Before operations were started for its removal it not infrequently so blocked the rivers with floating masses of flowers that navigation was seriously impeded, and the rafting of logs, on which the lumber industry was dependent, was at times entirely stopped.

During the fiscal year just ended Government engineers carried on a ruthless campaign to eradicate the plant, and the U. S. Hyacinth and the barge Chene have been in steady operation; besides good-sized sums were spent by individuals and transportation companies interested in removing the plants from particular sections of the rivers. How to get rid of the plants has been a problem that has taken considerable experimentation. Plans for a vessel and a crushing plant were abandoned after the scheme had proven unsatisfactory, and spraying with a solution of arsenic was tried with success, but abandoned because it proved injurious to cattle which fed on the plant.

At the present time the streams are being kept clear by a hyacinth elevator, consisting of a catamaran scow, with conveyor and a large grapple, operated by a hoisting engine.

WHY BANKS?

LESSON XII

By J. H. PUELICHER, Chairman
Public Education Commission, American Bankers Association

J. H. Puelicher

What is a Trust Company? Technically defined it is a bank that specializes in investment and fiduciary services in addition to general banking services. Humanly speaking, it is what its name implies—a place of trust.

INVESTMENT—lending money for income or profit to business and governments to "carry on." Such lending is often done through the purchase by investors of bonds selected by a bank or a trust company as safe and desirable.

FIDUCIARY—held in trust and confidence. For example, a trustee holds a man's estate for the benefit of his widow or children, cares for it faithfully, invests it prudently and uses it for their welfare in accordance with his wishes.

TRUST COMPANIES are able to fulfill these functions because of their experience in investments, because of their trained officers, and because of their continuous existence while an individual often knows nothing of investments, usually lacks experience and training, and may die during the life of the trust.

BACK TO NORMAL

In no period since the war has greater progress in the return to normal business conditions been made by industry, commerce and finance than during the past year. This reestablishment of normal conditions has been brought about by the working of purely economic influences. These influences and this result completely refute the arguments and pretensions of opportunist politicians and radical demagogues who have sought to bring about "readjustment" by political measures. These measures were aimed to give gratuitous advantages to the special interests and classes which the proposers assumed to represent, to the detriment of the general good.

The virtual disappearance, by natural economic processes, of the abnormalities that have persisted, as the long drawn out aftermath of the war, has removed whatever justification their presence seemed to give for governmental paternalism and for special measures of relief for particularly distressed classes. At best these measures were merely sedatives for psychological conditions and not real remedies for economic conditions. To that extent they served a purpose, but there is no further public good that they can serve. With normal conditions once more established it should be the resolute determination of all business men to resist any further effort at political interference with economic processes.

The time is at hand for a thoroughgoing return to a free play of private enterprise and private initiative under unhampered competitive conditions. Government influence and political interference in respect to business should be reduced to an absolute minimum. We as bankers ask no special privileges for ourselves. Equally we are opposed to special privileges for other groups at the expense of the general welfare. The experience of the past few years has been one of the greatest demonstrations in history of the validity of the view that the community interests of a people are best served by the maximum degree of private enterprise and private initiative with the minimum of government regulation.—Declaration of the American Bankers Association.

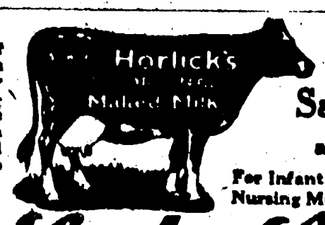

Relatives and friends of soldiers who died in the World War and who have purchased tombstones and monuments to mark the last resting places of the hero dead will not be reimbursed for such expenditure by the Government. The Quartermaster Department will supply headstones for the unmarked graves of honorably discharged soldiers, sailors and marines who served in any war, but does not in any case contribute toward an independent purchase.

The Essex county committee of the American Legion is preparing to submit to the New Jersey Legislature a bill providing for the erection of a monument to the memory of Woodrow Wilson, who for 24 years maintained his residence in that State.

A bill was recently introduced in the French Senate, to restore the citizenship and facility of divorce and remarriage to those French girls who were married to American soldiers during the World War, and were abandoned by their husbands. Many of the soldiers returned to America without leaving any address or communicating with their French wives after their departure.

Old Record Contains Interesting Items Of Early Days Of County

Probate office book No one is a document that has many interesting entries in it which gives an insight into the early life of the then pioneer county and village Marriages, wills stray notices and in fact all items of business transacted by the office are entered in one book instead of having separate books for different entries as it is today

One series of entries is especially interesting as bearing upon the lives of poor boys and girls or in fact any boy or girl who was bound out to learn a trade Today if a young man cannot earn from $4 to $5 per day he will not work at all but it was different then

On the 7th day of Sept 1826 Samuel Stillwell father of James Stilwell a ten year old boy apprenticed the boy to Abner Murray Carlisle to learn the art science and mysteries of farming until he shall arrive at the age of 21 during which time he shall faithfully serve and his lawful commands obey and said Murray shall teach him farming furnish meat drink [illegible] washing [illegible] further [illegible] be instructed to read write [illegible] so much arithmetic as will include the rule of three At the end of the apprenticeship he shall furnish him with a new Bible and two suits of wearing apparel one for common wear, and the other to wear to meetings and holidays and shall also pay $70 to be paid in one yoke of oxen and the remainder in saleable meat Said Murray also agrees to pay expenses in case of sickness "

This boy fared better than most of them, for the usual reward for service was a new Bible and two suits of clothing only One boy was apprenticed to Luther Lane Elyria pioneer, and the boy was enjoined to faithfully serve his secrets keep and all his commands to obey and shall do his master no damage nor suffer others to do so and shall not play any unlawful games but demean himself in a becoming manner In return the boy was taught the joiners trade and at the end of his time was to receive two ray [illegible] plane a square and a chisel and hammer

One entry is made by a father who wished to release his son from any further obligation to him The son was 18 years of age and he is released from any further service, or from paying over any wages he might receive " He was also given three young cattle, a draught chain, ax and hoe, and the son then released the father from any further obligations for his support

The girls in those days were also bound out to learn to do housework They also were to receive a new Bible and two suits of clothes What would the young people of today think if they had to serve six or seven years for their keep, and not receive a cent in wages for their labor.

The first will recorded was made in June, 1813, and was made a matter of record Nov. 23, 1823 Evidently the man who made it was a religious man Before he disposed of his property he states

"I commend my soul to God, relying on his mercy, through the covenant of Christ for freedom and eternal life My body I give to the earth, hoping to receive the same again at the resurrection."

The record of stray cattle picked up is in some cases amusing to people of today. On the 29th of March, 1826, a man reports that he picked up "a stray, line backed, pyed, muley bull, has two red hind legs, redish ears, redish sides mixed with white, white belly, red hind legs, and short stub horns pointing down. Found running at large in the woods on the public square of Elyria" Further down the record states that three appraisers were appointed, and they valued the "pyed muley" as being worth $5 50. Many other stray horses, cattle, and hogs are mentioned, and the usual price for a horse was from $6 to $20, cattle from $4 to $8, and hogs, $3 each If no one appeared to claim the animal, it was turned over to the person who picked it up.

The first marriage license recorded in this county was that of Douglas Smith to Sally Burrell, June 2d, 1824. The marriage was performed by Jabez Burrell, Justice of the Peace of Sheffield township The record also records the names of minister of the early days who were licensed to perform marriages, and the whole volumn is filled with a permanent record of the legal affairs of the county when it was in its infancy.

HELSINGFORS, December 19—Leon Trotzky, Russian Commissar for war, refuses to leave Moscow, according to dispatches received here today and his opponents are fearful of forcing the issue, anticipating a possible outbreak of Kremlin troops still Loyal to the war commissar.

LISBON, Dec. 19.—The Government today declared forfeit securities belonging to the former Royal House of the King, following attempt of Manuel to realise on them. Manuel recently announced his intention to participate actively Portuguese [illegible]

MADRID, Dec. 19.—The [illegible] ory in Madrid has ordered [illegible] to occupy the Masonic lodge [illegible] to suppress the order according to dispatches to the Journal.

MUSCLE SHOALS FIGHT GROWS BITTER

Senate Faces Battle of Many Weeks' Duration as Underwood Bill Seems Certain to Fail Before Christmas Adjournment

WASHINGTON, Dec 19 —Prospect of a bitter fight that may extend for weeks over the Muscle Shoals question faced the senate today.

Just when administration leaders thought they would be able to force a vote on Underwood bill before the start of the Christmas recess tomorrow, Progressives announced they would not permit action on the measure until after the vacation period If necessary they said they would filibuster.

Progressives hoped by delay to muster recruits to their ranks and defeat the Underwood bill This plan of strategy has the support of all progressives in the senate and was understood to have been agreed upon in conference in which Senator LaFollette, Republican of Wisconsin, participated.

Fight for Time.

As a counter to this move, Senator Curtis, of Kansas, Republican leader, announced he would demand the senate remain in session tonight This will be fought by Progressives, Senator Norris, Republican of Nebraska, declaring he would move an adjournment at five o'clock.

In Progressive ranks there was the feeling that every day's delay in the vote on the Underwood bill would lessen its strength

Norris assailed the administration's night session plan as "a test of physical endurance"

Another avalanche of amendments both to the Norris and Underwood bills flooded the senate today The immediate amendment was that proposed by Walsh extending federal regulation to all surplus power developed at Muscle Shoals

Plans Commission.

The authors of plans to submit the whole Muscle Shoals question to specially named commissions Senator Wadsworth, Republican of New York, and Jones, Republican of Washington, submitted amendments to their original proposals

The Wadsworth commission of five which would be empowered to dispose of Muscle Shoals as it saw fit could lease Muscle Shoals to a partnership as well as either an individual or a corporation under the amendment.

Jones provided that his committee of three must report back to congress recommendations for disposal of Muscle Shoals on the first Monday in December, 1925, instead of January 1926, and must not entertain any plans for a lease longer than 50 years

To make certain the production of fertilizer at Muscle Shoals, Senator Smith, Democrat, of South Carolina, would require the federal corporation created under the Norris plan to manufacture a minimum of 40,000 tons of nitrates annually after the fourth year.

SHUT-INS WILL HEAR CHRISTMAS CAROLS

The McDowell chorus composed of girls of the Freshman and Sophomore classes at the high school will sing carols in the public square Tuesday night at 6 45 From there they will proceed to the homes of the shut-ins, and will sing carols for them. They will proceed from Broad to Bridge street, thence to Water, and from Water to Third, thence to West avenue, to Sixth street, thence to East avenue; thence to Fourth; Fourth to East River, thence to the hospital where they will disband.

If lighted candle are placed in the windows of residences, the young people will be glad to stop and sing.

Laws For Health Lag Behind Sanitary Progress

WHILE the sanitarians of the United States in recent years have led the world in fighting preventable disease and postponable death, the laws for the protection of public health have failed to keep in step with this progress. This fact is stated in a report just issued of the General Health Bureau.

Recognizing that much of the transmission of disease, with a consequent high death rate, has been due to the common drinking cup, the Bureau undertook a national inquiry of the laws on this subject.

It took as its basis the conclusions of the United States Public Health Service, which, in Bulletin No. 57, charged the common drinking cup, improperly washed between users, with responsibility for the communication of: tuberculosis, pneumonia, tonsilitis, typhoid fever, scarlet fever, infantile paralysis, diphtheria, measles, influenza, grippe and common colds.

The vigor of this Federal condemnation in 1912, according to the report, induced other States to take belated action so that the years between 1912 and 1915 saw most of the commonwealth legislatures on record against the menace.

Then, as evidence that Federal authorities were alert for further drastic measures, the Standard Railway Code was offered to the Conference of State Health Authorities in 1920. In the ensuing period this further restriction was applied by thirty-four States for the protection of the traveling public.

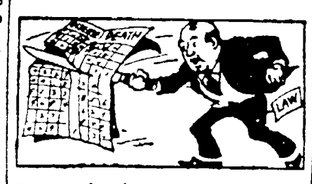

"However," says the report, "with all these splendid results there is to be found, in a study of the State laws, fields for further improvement if legislation, designed to guard national and State health, is to achieve its purpose. It becomes pertinent, now that fifteen years have elapsed since the original agitation, to make reference to certain omissions that are evident in the laws as now written.

"Texas has no legislation of any character whatever against this evil. Georgia and South Carolina have adopted the Railway Code, but have no other legislation. Twelve States that have laws against the common drinking cup have not adopted the Railway Code. However, some cover the same ground in their statutes.

"The initial zeal that produced such a flood of legislation," continues the report, "brings to light the fact that many legislatures and the sanitarians who prompted their action failed in having a sufficient view of the scope to which the laws should apply Few of the States have since given a proper review of their action and have failed to promote amendments that would make up the omissions of the original draft.

"It is true, also, that many State measures lack in effectiveness because of the enforcement personnel available to health officers. This is a general fact, although in large cities there is a greater vigilance; but even in these places the health officers frankly confess their inability to compel general compliance.

"In Durham and Goldsboro, in North Carolina, for instance, the health authorities have arbitrarily ordered all soda fountains to replace their glasses and other vessels with sanitary single-use containers. This same compulsory measure has been adopted at many of the State and county fairs held this year."

Telling of Durham's experience in forbidding all but single-use containers at soda fountains and other public places, J. H. Epperson, Superintendent of the Department of Health, says:

"Our ordinance requiring the use of individual paper containers for the serving of patrons of soft drink establishments is being enforced rigidly. We do not permit the use of glasses under any consideration. We have even gone so far as to require circuses, carnivals and other traveling organizations dispensing soft drinks to the public to use individual containers.

"I am indeed glad to state that there is little or no opposition at the present time to the use of the individual service at soda fountains. The public in this community is solidly backing the Department in the enforcement of this regulation as evidenced by the fact that recently the grand jury took notice of the ordinance and complimented the efforts of the officers in the rigid enforcement of the law.

"I am of the opinion that any community who attempts the use of sterilizers at soda fountains is simply wasting effort so far as preventing the spread of infection by the use of so called sterilized glasses. It has been my experience that the average soda fountain boy will evade the law in every way possible. The removal of all glassware from the fountain and the use of the individual cup will accomplish the purpose for which the law was intended.

"I am positive that the use of the individual container will never be discontinued in Durham"

"The results that have attended the passage of legislation against the common drinking cup are calculable," continues the report "They leave their favorable mark in the tables of morbidity and death; they are to be seen in the expanded span of life.

"It is timely, then, that all persons or organizations working for the general health strive for:

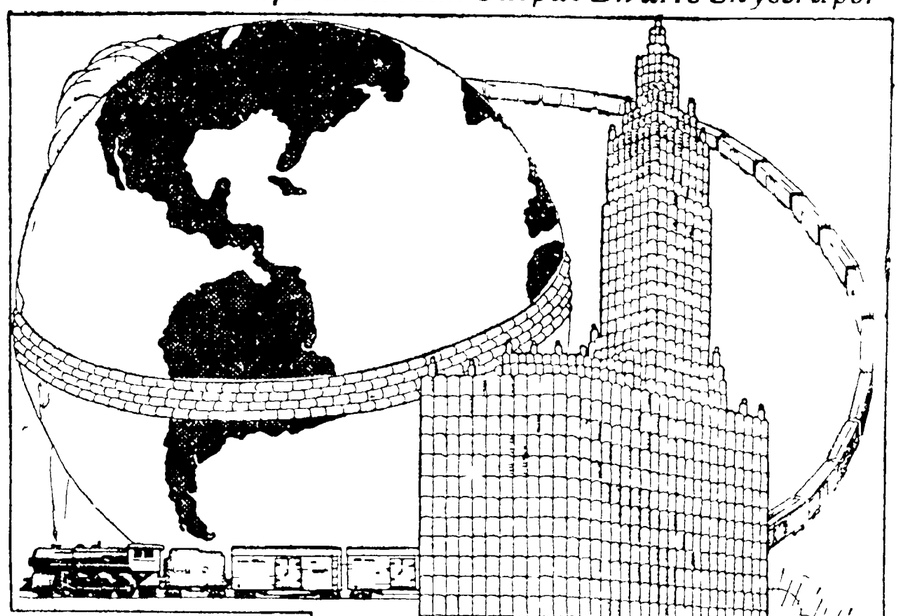

"Enforcement of existing statutes.

"Support of zealous health officers.

"Amendments to the existing laws that will make them uniform with best legislation, applicable to new conditions and sufficiently drastic to make the public, either wittingly or unwittingly, parties to compliance.

"With the progress evident in other fields of disease prevention the present offers the great opportunity to promote the general welfare with new and uniform enactments. The necessity is acute enough to warrant Federal officers submitting to the various States a code—similar to that applying to railroads—for individual acceptance."

One Year's Evaporated Milk Output Dwarfs Skyscraper

TIN CAN GIRDLE AROUND EARTH

WRIGLEY TOWER AGAINST MILK SKYSCRAPER

CHICAGO—Appreciation of the immensity of the evaporated milk industry in the United States will be clearer when it is seen that last year's production of 1,400,000,000 cans would make a solid mound of tins twelve times larger than Chicago's stately Wrigley Building with its area of 11 000 square feet and 898 foot tower or an edifice of similar shape more than three-fourths of a mile high.

The entire production of evaporated milk in cans, if laid end to end, would extend four times around the globe at the equator It would fill a train of 25,000 freight cars.

"The amazing growth of the evaporated milk industry in the past ten years can be traced to the purity convenience and flavor of the commodity" declared Herbert C. Hoeks, secretary of the Evaporated Milk Association in an address here. "Evaporated milk frequently and erroneously confused with condensed milk, is merely milk with 60 per cent of the water removed. There is nothing added and nothing removed except water Sterilization at a temperature 100 degrees above the pasteurization point completely removes all bacterial life It keeps indefinitely in the arctic or the tropics.

"Housewives appreciate evaporated milk because it is always available and always of known purity. During the world war, production was greatly stimulated because of its food value in army and naval rations. Its acceptance as a food for infants is unquestioned These things are all tending to bring evaporated milk to the front as a leading milk product."

DAILY NEWS LETTER

General News and Gossip from Staff Writers at Home and Abroad

TOKYO, Dec. 19.—Musubu-nokami may have brought happiness to the hearts of Miss Sugako Tsuchimikado and Mr. Eikichi Kimura, but he is in wrong with Papa and Mama Tsuchimikado, and has started a first-class furore in Japanese high society.

In the United States and other English-speaking domains Musubunokami would be known as Mr. Daniel Cupid. The reader should now be able to get the general drift of this story. By way of further explanation, however, it may be stated that Miss Sugako Tsuchimikado is a daughter of Viscount Masayuki Tsuchimikado and was formerly a lady-in-waiting to the Empress of Japan. Eikichi Kimura is a cook, who also was once employed in the royal household.

The furore is the result of the announcement that Musubu-nokami has planted his deadly darts in the hearts of Miss Tsuchimikado and Mr. Kimura and they have declared their intention to wed. The idea of the daughter of a nobleman and a former lady of the Imperial Court allaying herself with a humble cook does not evoke any cheering among the "upper crust" of Japanese society.

Particularly repugnant to Viscount and Viscountess Tsuchimikado is the idea of the proposed union between their daughter and the biscuit architect.

"It is deplorable," the Viscountess moaned when the news was broken to her. "I may strike her name from the family register."

And when a Japanese maiden's name is eradicated from the family register she is out of the picture just as effectively as a ball player who is disbarred by Judge Landis.

Dan Cupid got in his work while Miss Tsuchimikado and Kimura were both attached to the Imperial household, although in widely separate capacities. Kimura was in the Bureau of Imperial Cuisine as a waiter and part of his duties was to carry meals to the court ladies. It was in performance of this task that he met Miss Tsuchimikado.

Miss Tsuchimikado was known in court circles as Yayegiku, which means "Double-Petaled Chrysanthemum." She had been in the service of the Empress since 1918, but resigned her post a few months ago on the pretext of ill health. Kimura resigned about the same time, but later took a post as cook and steward in the household of Baron Matsui, former Minister of Foreign Affairs, where he is now employed. Tsuchimikado's family runs back in unbroken line to Haruaki Abe, the ancient Japanese astronomer and prophet. Kimura's antecedents are by no means so distinguished.

Kimura has taken a small house in a Tokio suburb and his mother is making preparations for the wedding. His friends, as is the custom in Japan, are negotiating with Viscount Tsuchimikado in an effort to gain his consent to the marriage.

There are no indications that Viscount Tsuchimikado intends to yield, but in modern Japan Musubunokami often is more potent than a mere parent. Friends of both young people confidently expect that ere long Hibiya Shrine, where most Japanese nuptials are celebrated, will be the scene of a very pretty wedding between a bride of high degree and a bridegroom of humble origin.

[illegible] NAMED—In regard to the hearing of a suit against the Village of Oberlin and three construction companies brought by a taxpayer of that village, in the Chronicle-Telegram of yesterday the name of the Highway Construction Co., of Elyria was printed in error. The defendant firm was the Elyria Construction Co. instead.

It is no worse to kick a man behind his back than to yawn in his face.

EDDIE COLLINS TO BOSS WHITE SOX $25,000

CHICAGO, Dec. 19.—Edward T. Collins, probably the greatest second baseman baseball has known, will contrive to eke out an existence next session at a salary of $25,000 as player-manager of the Chicago White Sox, according to the dope today among baseball men as they departed for home.

Collins thus entered the small but select group of baseball's "heavy sugar" boys, the coterie including Messrs. Ruth, McGraw, Cobb and Hornsby.

No other ball player or manager is believed to draw more than $20,000 a year. Charles A. Comiskey, who is not inclined to be careless with important money, will look for Collins to make good on the investment.

The length of Edward's contract, one year, is the tip off on Comiskey's attitude. Never before has he paid an employee more than $15,000 a year. The present arrangement would prove somewhat irksome to him if the White Sox were chronic losers under Collins.

Collins, of course, will get a fair trial. In fact he probably will receive better financial support than any manager outside New York. For Comiskey has told friends that he will back Collins to the limit, even to the extent of paying as much for a good minor league prospect as he did for Willie Kamm, to wit, $100,000.

At the same time he admits that he can not really buy what the Sox needed last year, a hustling ball club. Johnny Evers was dropped down in a tough spot when Frank Chance died. The going became rougher as the campaign progressed. There seemed to be quite a few ball players in Chicago who wouldn't win for Evers. The White Sox, even though they lacked consistent pitching and a short-stop, were not a last place ball club on paper.

Nearly every baseball man expects Collins to do better with the White Sox than they did last session. The Sox finished last, but he must have a shortstop and the tip is out that Comiskey will shortly indulge himself in another costly minor league purchase.

SPORTS DONE BY BROWN

There are many thousands of motorcycle enthusiasts who get their thrills and find their hobbies in put-puting about the country in their leisure hours. The wind whistling past their ears on a long level stretch of road is the elixir in life they crave.

To them a little incident in connection with the arrival of the ZR-3 from Germany recently, will be interesting.

The arrival of the Giant dirigible the last to be built in Germany, and a contribution to America as part of Germany's payment for the war, was an important news event of course. Photos of its arrival were precious. Newspapers and picture syndicates vied with each other in obtaining them and placing them in clients' hands at the earliest possible moment.

Most New York agencies of photographic concerns depended upon airplanes to take the photos of the big air liner as it neared New York city and land the plates at the nearest point. This point was Mitchel field. The negatives were then rushed to the heart of New York city by auto. One concern, however, believed that photos could be landed at Lakehurst, N. J., destination of the ZR-3 and carried part way to their offices by motorcycle quicker—if the right man to handle the motorcycle was found.

Th ride by auto from Mitchel field to downtown New York is a 45-minute one by auto. This concern figured that a motorcycle could carry the photos as far as Newark N. J., and the remainder of the trip be made by tube under the Hudson river in 15 minutes.

To turn the trick they asked Hamilton Wright Jr., personal friend of one member of the firm and a motorcycle enthusiast to help them.

Wright left Lakehurst, N. J., with his pictures half an hour after the last airplane—and his photos were delivered in downtown New York 15 minutes after the packages from the first plane had been delivered to a rival concern. He beat all the other airplane messengers by over one hour.

He made the 85 miles from Lakehurst to Newark, N. J., in 1 hour and 28 minutes. He was stopped twice for brief seconds enroute.

Those who have straddled a high speed motorcycle will know how fast young Wright was traveling during that 85 mile stretch. Eighty five miles in as many minutes.

He says modestly he made "upwards of 80" when he got the chance.

Oh, boy!

There may be one more new ring champion crowned in the closing weeks of 1924, in the opinion of some New York boxing fans. Abe Goldstein, bantamweight champion of the world, has signed to meet Eddie "Cannonball" Martin, Brooklynite, in a title battle Dec. 12 at Madison Suare Garden. It will go 15 rounds at the bantamweight limit of 118 pounds so there will be no question of legality of the match if Martin should be a winner, which his followers believe is better than an even chance.

Four years ago a little fellow named Jack Sharkey was the talk of the boxing world. He met Joe Lynch, then bantamweight champion of the world, in two battles that went down as classics. He went at Pete Herman, Joe Burman, Johnny Buff and Jabez White and gave a good account of himself every time. Then, about a year ago he dropped out of sight. Now he is attempting a comeback in New York. He took on one Izzy Cooper the other night in Gotham for a starter and then Jack's showing indicated that he is regaining his old-time form.

The Eagles rolled against the Simpson Motors in the City League at the Gala alleys last night, taking two out of three games.

The last two games were real battles, the Simpsons taking their only game in the second stanza while the Eagles came back and took the final. R. Maddock was high man and rolled a 246 game.

Haserodts Diamonds also dropped two games to the Temples. Pierce was high man in this series.

KENNETH WEST ELECTED Y CAPTAIN

The Elyria "Y" team staged another practice session last night making about their third time out this season. They look promising.

Some of last year's team members are on hand again. Using them for a neucleus with several of the new men a good fast snappy team will be in the field for this seasons play.

Already teams from out of town all over this section of the state have requested games both on the local floor and out of town. At present no games have been signed up for the team feels that they should get into good shape and then take on the best that they can get.

The practice workouts at present are consisting of different floor shots, passing of all kinds, correction of faults and a little scrimmage to get some working combinations. In a week or so the team will no doubt show a great deal of improvement and will be ready to take on some opponent.

As stated above the first game has not been decided upon but it will probably be on or near New Year night. If possible a strong team will be scheduled the same as has been the custom for the past four years.

At a meeting of team members after last night's workout the members of the squad present held the election for captain for this season. Harold Halpin and Kenneth West were the only two nominated and after some close balloting the total showed that "Ken" West would lead the team for this season.

West was a member of the high school team and after graduating he joined the "Y" squad playing a real game. He was one of the regulars on last year's aggregation and will no doubt be a real leader for this year's team.

One more practice will be held this week and another the first part of next week.

COURT DENIES SMYRNA FIRE CLAIMS

LONDON, Dec. 19.—A judgment which means a loss of almost $100,000,000 to business men throughout the world was given today when the American Tobacco Company lost its suit against the Guardian Insurance Company.

The claim grew out of the burning of Smyrna, Turkey, during the Revolutionary fighting several years ago.

The Tobacco Company claimed payment for damage to insured goods, contending the fire was accidental. The Insurance company contended it was the result of incendiarism.

THE LAXITY IN LAW ENFORCEMENT IN ELYRIA

If there was a deliberate purpose and plan to make a joke out of the enforcement of the ordinances and the enforcement of law in our city, it could not be better done than is being done at the present time in the Mayor's court. Inadequate fines are assessed against offenders in many cases and then even these small fines are not paid but the offenders are permitted to go on their way with a promise that they will pay, until there has become an accumulation of these cases adding to the burden of the City Attorney, to the disrespect with which our court is held and to the weakness of our law enforcement and a general bad condition in our government.

The other day, a reckless, drunken driver caused his machine to collide with another vehicle in the city. The two men taken from the machine were found drunk. The driver, after delay in his hearing, postponement of his case, was fined the small sum of Fifty Dollars and costs, on which he paid nothing, but was released on the promise that sometime he would pay it. The car which he struck was damaged, the occupants were injured and might have been killed, had the driver not seen the recklessly driven car coming down the street and stopped so that there was no momentum in her own car. The other man in the car beside the drunken driver, also being drunk, was fined One Hundred Cents. We have not the record as to whether these pennies were collected by the court or not.

Does anyone dream that this kind of alleged law enforcement causes respect for the law or adequate protection for life and limb?

A few days ago, another man charged with bootlegging was brought before the court. The Mayor told him at once that he was going to assess a fine of Five Hundred Dollars against him, but the culprit begged off and finally was let go for the time being on a bond. Later he was fined half the amount that the Mayor originally assessed against him and was let go on the payment of two-fifths of that amount, on the promise that he would pay the balance in monthly installments.

Again, the other day, two men were let go to "find" money with which to pay their fines, and as yet, they have not returned. This is not the exception, but it amounts to the rule to such an extent that unpaid fines and costs have accumulated in our police court so that they have been turned over to the City Attorney to collect. For the dignity of the court, for the respect of our laws, and for the efficacy of our city ordinances, the law violator should be committed until the fines and costs are paid. But these men evidently have learned that there is no serious penalty for violating law in the city of Elyria.

The City Attorney has a large number of these amounts due from offenders, some of which are represented by notes; others, simply promises. And the City Solicitor is now asked to spend his time as a collection agency against the law violators. Then when he comes into the court with a package of these bills in his hands, and notes that the mayor gives small fines, releases the offender on promises, sometime to make good to the city, is it any wonder that he in turn declares that he will not attempt to make collections from these offenders when the Mayor simply piles up the work for him without a real enforcement of the law?

How long will the people of the city of Elyria permit this condition to continue? A drunken man today evidences law violation. There has been liquor purchased or obtained illegally. He is more of a danger to himself and to others particularly because of the innumerable vehicles upon our highway than formerly and yet the fine is so foolishly small that it has become a joke in the city.

There is no real determined effort to command respect for the law or to enforce it. The object of the fine, with the power to place in jail until the fine is paid, is to so penalize the offender so as to prevent him from committing the second offense and also to use as an illustration for others who would violate the law. It is a serious matter and society should be protected from such offenders. So far from this being the case today—it is just the opposite. Among those who are prone to violate the law, the attitude taken in assessing small fines and releasing them from payment entirely at the time, so that they can go on their way rejoicing and snap their finger at the city, is so well known that they consider the violation of law as simply a subject for humor.

Elyria has borne an enviable reputation for years for law enforcement, for respect for ordinances. When an offender has been brought before the Mayor, there has been forced upon him, by the administration of the law, that it is a serious thing to offend against the united expressed will of the people as found in the ordinances of the city.

The people of the city elect the mayor to perform that very function. Surely the life and limb of our citizens and our protection from law violators should not be held so lightly by the chief executive of our city as to cause him to practically encourage the people to continue in their wrong doing. The case calls for some redress. We have been watching these matters for quite a long period of time. We have hoped that the mayor would see the condition himself so that he would correct it; and we believe the citizens have the right not only to ask the mayor to do his duty, but we believe they have the right to demand that he shall do it, for their own protection and their neighbors'.

TIMELY VIEWS ON WORLD TOPICS

"ALASKAS DREAMS OF STATEHOOD WITHIN FOUR YEARS" SAYS ITS GOVERNOR.

Statehood within four years is the dream of Alaska, according to Scott Bone, Governor of the Territory, who recently visited New York and Washington.

"Alaska is slowly getting ready for statehood," said Governor Bone. "As yet we suffer from a lack of population which would militate against us with Congress undoubtedly. There has been no material gain since the 1920 census, although there has been a steady growth. We believe that with the development of Alaska's natural resources and the onward march of industry there will be an incidental jump in the population in the next four years which may warrant a demand for statehood."

GOV. S. C. BONE

Six hundred thousand square miles in area, Alaska has only 60,000 inhabitants, of which one-half is made up of Indians and Eskimoes and one-half of whites. Alaska, according to its Chief Executive, is now beginning to face to face with serious political problems. One is the enfranchisement of the Indians. Governor Bone believes this may call for some action by Congress, imposing and educational test. For the most part these new voters are illiterates, intellectually but poorly equipped to exercise the right to vote. Nor are they owners of any considerable property and the white property owners in the southern part of the State feel quite as badly about this new emancipation, as did the Southern whites when the negroes were enfranchised.

Natives Voted in Blocs.

"This is particularly true in elections where questions of taxation or the choice of legislators are concerned," said Governor Bone. "They are frequently voted in blocs by bosses of their own race and this is bitterly resented by persons whose property may be affected by legislation. We have a small legislative body, composed of only eight Senators and sixteen Representatives."

The Alaskans feel that their territory, with its tremendous hoard of natural wealth, has been the neglected stepchild of Uncle Sam long enough, according to the Governor.

"Alaska," he said, "is the least understood civilized commonwealth on the earth. It is not the vast upheaval of snow and ice that it is generally supposed to be. It has an equable climate and is in an inhabitable and even an inviting land. Its ports, with one exception, are open all the year around, so that there is constant communication with the outside world through Vancouver and Seattle."

The tourist trade, Governor Bone said, was on the increase. It is the nearest spot where Americans can view the midnight sun, which the Governor himself has seen on the Yukon. But for the shortage of tourist hotels, Alaska in June, July and August, with dreamy twilight that lingers until 11 at night and the sun rising at 2.30 in the morning, would be a paradise for the visitor. The winters are bitterly cold in the Behring Sea territory, but at Juneau, the capital, which is located 1,000 miles from Seattle, the temperature on the coldest day last winter was eight above zero.

WHO'S WHO IN THE DAY'S NEWS

HSUAN TUNG

Hsuan Tung, "Son of Heaven," remains an outcast from his native land of China—an exile in Japan. As little Pu Yi, two years old he ascended, the Chinese throne in 1908. Four years later, with the advent of the republic he abdicated, and since then has been allowed to live in retirement in the Palace of his fathers.

HSUAN TUNG

In December, 1923, he married a daughter of Jung Yuan, a Manchu noble, and, learning that Western Monarchs used personal names, he chose "Henry" for himself and "Elizabeth" for his wife.

A few years ago he angered the Imperial Dowagers by having his queue cut off. On November 5 soldiers broke into his retreat, demanding that he leave the palace, give up title and privileges and accept reduction of his annual income from $4,000,000 to $500,000. The influence of Sun Yat Sen and the Bolshevist Ambassador Karakhan, have been credited with the action.

Hsuan Tung moved, with the Empress and second Consort, to the house of his father, Prince Chun. His English tutor, R. F. Johnston, was refused admittance. The new Chinese Government granted Hsuan Tung his freedom, and his first act was to fly from the empire—a refugee.

THE WAY OF THE WORLD

By GROVE PATTERSON

New York's health commissioner says that automobiles from out of town carry typhoid into the city. Autos have been blamed for everything from petting parties and the bootleg trade to the high interest on borrowed money. But this is new. Among other things it seems they carry germs.

Dr. Albert Blakeslee, of the Carnegie Institute, sails for Peru to study the jimson weed. He finds in the jimson weed the best example of what evolution does in plant life. Learn the secret of evolution in plant life, he says, and that secret can be applied to all organic life. Even the perfect type of man or woman could be decided upon." That's the rub. Could any two of us agree on the perfect type of man or woman? There is no such thing. What perfection there is comes in the perfection with which we apply ourselves to whatever worthwhile tasks are in hand. We need not fret about the perfect type. We have enough in the striving to do as well as we can the particular things we have to do as well as we can the particular things we have to do.

Mrs. Henry LaForge, East St. Louis, Ill., has been married 13 times and has won 11 divorces. Most of the divorces were granted the ground of cruelty. This woman has gathered enough husbands to furnish a crossword puzzle. Doubtless that is what most of them were.

A bill has been introduced in the Danish Parliament permitting doctors to go unpunished if they take the lives of patents who are hopelessly ill. Probably the bill won't pass. It should not. Life is not given by man and neither man nor government has the moral right to take it away. We are not dealing with mere earthly affairs when we deal with life itself. Life is not beyond the influence of human hands and human institutions but it is beyond their finial decision.

Irving Fisher, of Yale, noted economist, says that scientific management will some day double the real wages of labor. He may be right and we hope he is. One thing we do know. Scientific management of the wages which we get would greatly increase our equipment for meeting the calls of life. Probably mankind suffers as much from stupid spending as he does from underpay.

POEMS THAT LIVE

ON DEATH

Can death be sleep, when life is but a dream
And scenes of bliss as a phantom by?
The transient pleasures as a vision seem,
And yet we think the greatest pain's to die.

How strange it is that man on earth should roam,
And lead a life of woe, but not forsake
His rugged path; nor dare to view alone
His future doom, which is but to awake.

—John Keats.

THE LORAIN COUNTY FARMers Institute held a two days session at the opera house. There was a small attendance on account of the extreme cold weather.

A SINGING SCHOOL HAD been in session during the fall and winter and it gave a concert at the opera house composed of one hundred voices. It was heralded as being one of the best concerts in years.

MESSRS. BELDING & BRUSH opened a new skating rink on the lot east of the Topliff hotel. It became the popular place of amusement for the village, and everyone that could raise the price of a pair of skates did so.

WILLIAM LONG, A DESPERado, escaped from the village lockup, and considerable excitement resulted. He was captured two days later at Toledo and returned here.

THE ICE HARVEST WAS ON and meat dealers were busy with large gangs of men cutting ice on the river and putting it in storage houses.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

The American stage will suffer a distinct loss in the retirement of Leo Dietrichstein, who has not only held place among the most finished actors of his day but has also attained more than ordinary success as a playwright. Although not an American by birth, Mr. Ditrichstein is essentially an American star, and has appeared before the American public continually for nearly 35 years. Born in Hungary, he was educated in Vienna and started upon his career as a singer in light opera. In 1890 he came to America and played for a time with a German stock company in New York. Having mastered the English language quickly, he was engaged by Charles Frohman and played his first English-speaking part in in John Drew's company. Then came his first great success, in the part of Zou Zou in the original production of "Trilby." Once assured of his place on the stage, he set about the task of becoming a playwright. In recent years his name has figured as the author, co-author or adapter of many successful plays.
